

FORTIVE TRANSPARENCY IN SUPPLY CHAINS STATEMENT

Introduction

The California Transparency in Supply Chains Act of 2010 (SB 657) (the “California Act”) requires certain manufacturers and retailers to make available to the public information respecting their efforts to monitor potential instances of slavery and human trafficking in their direct product supply chains.

The UK Modern Slavery Act (the “UK Act”) requires certain commercial organizations operating in the United Kingdom to publish a statement setting out the steps they have taken during the preceding financial year to ensure that slavery and human trafficking are not taking place in their own businesses or in any of their supply chains.

About Fortive Corporation (“Fortive”)

Fortive is a diversified industrial growth company comprised of Professional Instrumentation and Industrial Technologies businesses that are recognised leaders in key global markets. Fortive’s well-known brands hold leading positions in field solutions, transportation technologies, sensing, product realization, automation and specialty, and franchise distribution markets.

Fortive has more than twenty operating companies. A list of our key brands can be found here: <http://www.fortive.com/our-businesses/business-directory>.

In addition to the policies adopted at the Fortive level, some of our operating companies have implemented further policies or actions specific to their business and sector. The statements herein cover Fortive and the operating companies listed in the link above.

Policy Statement

Fortive’s direct employees shall be free to choose employment and Fortive does not engage in slavery or human trafficking.

Fortive’s Supplier Code of Conduct likewise provides that workers at direct supplier facilities must have the right to choose employment freely and that suppliers will not use child labor, will treat each worker with dignity and respect and will not subject workers to corporal punishment, mental or physical coercion or verbal abuse.

Fortive further requires by contract that all suppliers who do business with it and its subsidiaries comply with all applicable laws, expressly including laws against forced or involuntary labor.

In the last financial year, Fortive Corporation has not identified any direct suppliers engaged in human trafficking or slavery in connection with goods supplied to Fortive. The Fortive

Corporation auditing program currently does not evaluate the risks of human trafficking or slavery. However, we are developing initiatives to do so and will report on those in upcoming years.

Training and employee accountability

Fortive trains personnel on issues surrounding slavery and human trafficking and the implications for its businesses. The training is designed to provide personnel with knowledge to identify the risk factors around slavery and human trafficking.

Fortive maintains internal accountability standards for all employees, including employee obligations to report breaches of the Fortive Standards of Conduct provisions, which include terms specifying that employees are encouraged to raise questions when unsure about any integrity or compliance issue. Employees are required to report any actual or potential violations of law and to comply with all applicable laws. These employee accountability standards would require an employee to disclose an identified circumstance of slavery or human trafficking.

Fortive maintains a reporting helpline which concerned parties, including direct suppliers and employees, may use to report improper behavior by any supplier or by employees of Fortive or its operating companies. The Speak Up! helpline has a specific option for raising issues relating to human trafficking and slavery.

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read 'Jim Lico', with a stylized flourish extending from the end.

Jim Lico
President and CEO